

Bernie Hayden

Bernie Hayden seemed to be playing without effort on the 1-wall court. A soft hitter, with an overhand serve in doubles, Bernie compensated with great hands and brilliant strategy.

He seemed able to return nearly anything from the hardest hit power drives to the lowest kills. A master at volleying, Bernie never relinquished front court position. He was AAU National Masters Doubles Champion in 1968, '72, and '73. He also achieved National AAU Masters Doubles Runner-up status in '69 and '70. If any handball player could be compared with Albert Einstein, Bernie Hayden was that man. He was 1-wall's genius.
