

Bruce Eggelston

As Manager of Castle Hill Beach Club for more than twenty years, Bruce Eggelston was largely responsible for keeping handball in the forefront of activities for the Club's many enthusiastic patrons.

For years, with the help of one of the players, often National Hall of Famer Arty Reyer, he supported an annual one day doubles tournament, which drew the best 1-wall players from the city to compete for cash prizes. Towards the end of the Club's existence the tournament would include several of the upcoming Castle Hill players including a young and eventual all-around champion Eric Klarman.
