Satish was the first great National 1-Wall Singles Champion of the 21st century.

Honing his skills in the Bronx, Jagnandan was the quintessential 1-wall singles player, with a devastating serve and two brilliant hands, either one capable of shooting to anyplace on the wall – and with crushing power. He won the USHA National 1-Wall Singles four straight years, 2004 – 2007, then added a fifth National title in 2009. In 2008, his string of National titles was broken in the final match, and he settled for runner-up status. He was also National YMCA Singles Champion in 2004 and 2005. At this writing he remains a serious challenge to win yet another National USHA Singles championship.
